The project to transform the new premises of Suffolk Life at 153 Princes Street in Ipswich is now complete, and both Pat Lewis, MD of Source One, and the directors and staff of Suffolk Life could not be happier.

The plan to provide office furniture, including a new reception area, open plan office areas, seating and bespoke storage equipment was completed for Suffolk Life to move in, as planned, over the August bank holiday weekend.

Pat Lewis of Source One commented: "We were delighted to have been awarded the contract earlier this year and it was great to see the plans come to fruition. We are so pleased that Suffolk Life are enjoying their new environment. The best moment was visiting Suffolk Life on the Tuesday after their move and seeing everyone working as if they had been at '153' for months instead of hours. Over a period of a few months we had many meetings to ensure that every detail on every product we supplied was covered. Suffolk Life's commitment in those meetings was invaluable to making the project an all-round success. Many of the products supplied were special to Suffolk Life to ensure that their way of working was made as efficient as possible, particularly as they have specialist storage requirements."

Pat Lewis continued: "As usual for Source One, all our advice on this project, as for all our other projects, was free of charge. Regardless of the product – a small shelf clip, a key, one chair or 100 desks – we will always help. We aim to give an outstanding service at a value-for-money price that we believe is hard to beat in the area. If our client is a start-up business, an established SME or a large organisation we will approach the task in exactly the same manner."

Henry Catchpole, Managing Director of Suffolk Life, commented "Our move to 153 Princes Street went incredibly smoothly over the August bank holiday weekend, 2005. We are very grateful to Pat Lewis, and all his colleagues, who worked round the clock making certain the equipment they supplied was all in the right place when business recommenced on Tuesday 30th August."
