

Source One - more than just office furniture

TYRRELL and Company's decision to appoint Source One, the leading office interiors company, to refurbish their offices in Sawston has been proved to have been well made.

Richard Suswain, partner of Tyrrell and Company, commented: 'Source One and Lisa Roberts, director of Source One, were totally dedicated and always on hand during our refurbishment. Their personal style of working and their total dedication to the project from day one was very refreshing indeed.'

Provided

'Lisa provided everything we required and much more, confirming their promise – MORE THAN JUST OFFICE FURNITURE. We knew from early on that our refurbishment was in safe hands – this meant that we could spend more time on other areas of the project and of course our main business.'

'With the help of Source One we have created a bright, airy and spacious place of work, welcoming meeting rooms for our clients, and filing systems that will work now and in the future.'

'Overall we are working in a much more comfortable and productive environment.'

Tyrrell and Company (www.tyrrellandcompany.co.uk) is a firm of accountants which provide specialist services to corporate clients based on not just an accounting service but also helping to maximise the potential within their clients business.

The offices are functional and a welcoming, fresh and comfortable place to work for both staff and clients

Established in 1989, the expansion evidences its continued success. Tyrrell and Company's partners and staff understand completely that the success of their business relies totally on their reputation and their new offices help to endorse this ethos.

Lisa, director of Source One, which has branches in Cambridge, Letchworth, Newmarket and Ipswich, explained: 'We listened intently to Tyrrell and Company to find out how they worked and how they planned to work in the future. We put forward to the partners how we would manage the process of ensuring their refurbished offices would suit their style of working and incorporated their plans to expand in the future.'

Closely

'We worked very closely alongside the partners over a period of months to ensure that the layout of the offices suited the workflow of the business and that their storage needs were suitable for both now and in the future.'

Process

'Throughout the free planning process we ensured that not only were their offices well-designed but that they also provided a welcoming, fresh and comfortable place to work for both staff and clients. Alongside our advice we provided office furniture and storage for the main offices and also provided the refurbishment services for the office partitioning.'

Lisa concluded: 'We were delighted with Tyrrell and Company's reaction to their new offices. We work very closely with our clients to ensure that when we have completed a project that they are not just happy with our work, but also feel that they have had an enjoyable experience during the process.'

Source One's office interiors service is completed by its FREE office planning, design and advice facility. Whether the requirement is for one chair or a project similar to Tyrrell and Company's, Source One will provide a service based around a personal approach, commitment and a smile

If you would like to talk to Source One, call now on 08456 031585