

wow factor inside new sixth-form building

In September 2009 a striking new sixth form centre was opened at Woodbridge School. With its contemporary architecture and state of the art teaching facilities, the building forms part of the school's vision for the future whilst respecting its tradition and history.

Ipswich based office interiors company Source One were chosen to work with the school and supply furniture and fittings which would follow through the contemporary feel inside the building.

Pat Lewis, managing director of Source One, comments: "We were chosen to work with the project team and were involved at a very early stage helping to plan the interior of the building and provide both contemporary and functional fittings. Our aim was not only to make it look good but to ensure that both pupils and staff could optimise their time in all the different areas of the building.

"Amongst our portfolio of clients are many educational institutions, as well as our office based clients, and it was great to be involved in this project which allowed us to work with the school and be a bit different and portray the image that Woodbridge School wanted to convey to prospective sixth formers".

Woodbridge School's Assistant Bursar for Estates, Steve Crane added: "From start to finish Source One demonstrated extreme flexibility in their approach to the project and were keen to ensure the end product lived up to the school's expectations. With everything in place on the scheduled dates the building was ready for occupation prior to the start of the new school year."
